SUN PRAIRIE FIVE HITS FAIR SCORE AT MILLERS' ALLEYS

Bowlers From Sun Prairie Fall to Take Down Record Set by Water-town Five.—They Hit 2,554 Pins.

The Temple Cigar five-man team Sun Prairie rolled for honors at the Miller alleys last night in the southern Wisconsin tournament which is now in progress. They came nearest to rolling the record set by the Madison and Watertown teams, but their efforts were in vain for they only hit a score of 2,554. This was a little disappointing for their team when they started out to roll, the first event ended with nearly nine hundred pins. In the next two games they kept sliding down each time. Emerson was their star as he rolled three good games. In the first his score was 194, in the second 212 and in the third 172.

Gund's Peerless five from this city also failed to get in for high scores. Their last night roll of 2,554 was a little off form and not in any of the events did they hit over eight hundred pins. 2,578 and 1,111 in the five-man and double event will have to remain the records unless some crack artists come along and change the luck of the tournament. The scores made so far are exceptionally low for the teams making them. To-night four teams will take the alleys. A five from the Knights of Columbus lodge will roll, and Van's Colts, Janesville Contracting company and the Monroe Tigers will all try for a twenty-six hundred score or better.

Doubles.
The same story about the doubles can be told as has been for the past week. When Brandenstein and Willard started out to roll, they were the ones to break down the Kuenzi and Guse score of 1,111. They didn't do it though because both of them fell down in the last event and their final score was 1,012. The other contestants in this class did no better and the sixth day of the tournament closed with no new double records.

Singles.
Six of the Sun Prairie men rolled in the single class, but they went home without establishing any high record for the prize money. Hecker was the high man with 567 points to his credit.

Two exciting bowling matches were staged at the West Side alleys last night. The first one was between the Janesville freight house five and the Clinton freight house employees. This struggle resulted in a scalp for the Power City men.

The other game was between the Clothing Clerks and Scrivens Barbers. The clerks had it all dotted out how they would slip it over on the staves, but when it came to throwing the balls down the alley and get the pins, the barbers had the shade on the landers. Following are the scores and lineups:

WELSH PLAYS SAFE WITH PHIL BLOOM

Elusive Freddie Does Some Side Stepping in New Match.—Benz Outpoints McCoy.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
New York, March 23.—Freddie Welsh defended his lightweight title at the Broadway Sporting club of Brooklyn last night the way he has defended it scores of other times—by playing it safe. Once more his defensive efforts were successful, for he managed to outpoint Phil Bloom, the rising Brooklynite, in ten mild rounds. The Briton employed his usual tactics of hit, miss, and get away—or clinch. In another bout at the same club Al McCoy retained whatever claims he has on the middleweight championship by managing to last the ten rounds despite an earnest attack by Joe Benz. McCoy tried about four times to start a powerful swing that would win the bout for him in a punch if it landed, but he never could, whereas Benz sent myriad blows home.

The weights for the bouts were: Welsh, 137½; Bloom, 133½; McCoy, 162½; Benz, 156.

WESTERN LEAGUE WILL CUT DOWN ON PASSES THIS YEAR FOR PROTECTION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Des Moines, Ia., March 23.—What is believed to be a movement to cut down the number of passes issued by baseball clubs of the Western League is in the process of formation here.

Following a statement issued at St. Joseph, Mo., by Jack Holland, owner of the St. Joseph Western league club, Sam Larrimer, president of the Des Moines Boosters club has a record as favoring the number of passes issued.

Mr. Larrimer in a statement issued here said he favored the limiting of passes to minors, head city officials, county and state officials and newspapermen.

"Everybody will agree that 500 passes to the Des Moines park is an excessive number," Mr. Larrimer said. "I favor cutting out all those, except the men who actually are entitled to free tickets and giving the owners of the ball club a chance to make a little profit."

In his statement at St. Joseph, Mr. Holland was quoted as saying: "The pass proposition is the curse of the Western league as well as of all minor leagues. If every city official limit the free tickets, as has been done here, baseball would be put on a sound financial basis."

"I estimate that every pass I issue makes me at least three enemies. A pass-holder naturally is proud of the fact that he is getting something for nothing and always shows the card-board. Other friends of the ball club send it and wonder why they are not entitled to a pass also."

"Another thing to be considered is the fact that the passholder usually is the very man who could afford to pay. The bleacherite never has a pass. I have had as many as 250 passes out here some seasons and it is safe to say that 100 of these would attend games each day under normal conditions. That is 7,000 admissions or $3,500 gone up in smoke in one season."

BELOIT FAIRIES NOW AFTER OUTFIELDER FIENE

If They Keep Up This Pace Getting Stars Janesville Will Have to Get the White Sox Out Here.

Lou Fiene, formerly a pitcher and later a heavy hitting outfielder with the Milwaukee club of the American association will be in Beloit the latter part of the week to look over his chances for a position on the Fairbanks-Morse baseball team. An effort will be made by the management to sign Fiene. The former Milwaukee player is a good outfielder and a hard hitter. He can still pitch good ball if the occasion requires. Last year he twirled in twenty-six games and won sixteen of them. His strong point, however, is his clutching and his stick work would make him a valuable acquisition for the Fairbanks-Morse team.

METHODIST CHURCH TOSSEES HAVE LITTLE TROUBLE WITH PRAIRIE TEAM LAST NIGHT

Rock Prairie's basketball team, that swamped Emerson about a week ago by a large score, was no match for the crack Methodist church team last night in a game staged in the high school gymnasium. The church boys had the score at the end of the game 28 to 15 in their favor. All the church players had a share in the scoring end of the contest, and Beard found the basket five times. The Prairie team put up a good fight but were poor on basket shooting.

Summary.
Methodists, 28—Prairie 15. Platten 4, Brotherson 1, Hill 1, Brownell 2, Beard 5, Lane 1, Rock Prairie, 15—Lamb 2, McLay 2, Barless 2, McFarlane 1, Manross, referee.

TY COBB AND KAUFF WILL MEET IN PRACTICE CONTEST

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Dallas, Texas, March 23.—Dallas baseball fans are congratulating themselves on being the first baseball enthusiasts to see Ty Cobb and Benny Kauff as opponents on the diamond. Cobb, who is now at the Waxahachie training camp, will meet Kauff here March 25-26, when the New York Giants, now at Marlin, start on their tour home. Kauff's signing with the Giants a few days ago assures this meeting.

RIVAL BIDS MADE FOR PARK DIAMOND

Two Factions Seek Use of Baseball Grounds Owned by Janesville Park Association.

Janesville baseball fans backing a city semi-professional team and another group advocating Janesville taking a berth in a proposed country league are bidding against each other for the use of the baseball diamond at the Janesville Park association grounds for the coming season. A decision as to which submitted contract for the use of the grounds it accepted to the association will be decided next Wednesday evening at a meeting of the Janesville fair directors. This announcement came today after both factions had approached board members with overtures to secure the diamond for their respective team.

A similar fight for the grounds occurred last year. The present outlook is that those behind the local semi-professional city team will not have as easy a matter in securing the contract this year as was the case in 1915. It appears that the county league advocates have interested a number of Janesville business men in the proposition. The latter, it is said, are ready to subscribe several hundred dollars to secure the grounds, providing the league is organized.

Both factions while they have sought the contract for the use of the grounds, are reticent regarding explicit plans. Until the matter of the diamond's use has been definitely settled, the case of Janesville baseball for the 1916 season must be held in abeyance.

BIG SALE OF SEATS FOR WILLARD BOUT

Crowds Stand in Line for Hours Today to Secure Lower Priced Seats for Heavyweight Go.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, March 23.—The box office at Madison Square garden, was besieged today by a crowd of several hundred persons who had secured seats for the Willard-Moran bout, scheduled for Saturday night, were placed on sale. Many of them had been standing in line since midnight, some bringing breakfast with them. A number of those in line waiting for the sale of seats to open were women.

The ticket sellers said they had only 1,100 or 2,000 of these low priced seats to sell, but disposed of 20,000. Only 2 tickets were sold to a person, officials said, in an effort to keep them out of the hands of speculators.

Shortly before ten the windows of the ticket office were closed, and it was announced that all seats had been sold. A great number of persons were still in line, and were turned away disappointed.

PLAN TO INTRODUCE THE FINGER PRINT SYSTEM AMONG AMATEUR BALL PLAYERS

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 23.—The plan of introducing the finger print system into semi-pro and amateur baseball is being discussed by members of the National Baseball Federation here. The subject was brought up by one of the Cleveland delegates, who told of an incident last summer when a player's name was signed to two contracts. The player claimed that one was a forgery and after this incident was related numerous others were told, so it is probable that the innovation of finger prints methods of identification will at least be taken up by the federation at its next meeting.

BOXING DECISION.
Lee Nelson, Chicago and Bud Gorman, fought ten rounds to a draw at Kenosha. Bob Moha, Milwaukee middleweight, outpointed Dick Gilbert in ten rounds, at Hot Springs.

Gus Christie defeated George Ash at New York, ten rounds.
Freddie Welsh won over Phil Bloom, ten rounds, New York.

WEATHER CHANGES BRING SICKNESS.
The winds, rain and changeable weather of March cause coughs, colds, grippe and influenza. There is no such thing as a "light cold"—none that a person can safely neglect. Foley's Honey and Tar is a safe and reliable family medicine that has afforded quick relief in thousands of cases. It relieves inflamed and congested air passages, stops coughs and eases breathing. It gets right at the seat of trouble and heals and soothes in a way that no imitation ever succeeded in doing. Be sure it's Foley's.—W. T. Sherer.

MORRIS MILLER

One of baseball's historians gives to Jim O'Rourke the credit for making Dan Brouthers famous. "After Brouthers had failed in a try-out with the Troy club," says the writer, "he went back to his old job of laying sewer pipe, resolved to quit the diamond for all time. A short time afterward Jim O'Rourke became manager of the Buffalo club. That was in the early '80's. One of the first things O'Rourke did was to round up Brouthers and offer him a contract. O'Rourke had seen 'Big Dan' in action and looked upon him as a diamond in the rough. After some persuasive talk O'Rourke got Brouthers' signature to the contract. What happened afterward is history."

It is perfectly appropriate that the Sioux City Indians should sign a red man, and they have. His name is Edmond Many Deeds. He is an outfielder, and it is now up to him to prove his name.

Fat Wilbert Robinson has signed Mike Mowery for Red Cross purposes on the Dodge team. Mike was a free bloke, the Pittsfield having released him before the season ended. He batted .282 in the trading stamp league last year. Mike changes his colors as frequently as a chambermaid. He has seen service with Cincinnati, St. Louis and the Pirates.

Howard Baker, who for some unexplained reason was drafted by the New York Giants last fall from Little Rock, has notified Secretary Foster from his home in Bridgeport that he will not play ball this year. He finds it more profitable to make ammunition for the allies. Baker cost the Giants $1,500, the draft price. He is no youngster and probably would not have beaten Hans Lobert out of his job anyway. There was a general surprise when the New York club drafted him.

The Portland club of the Pacific Coast league announced recently that it had signed Pitcher Byron Houck, once of the Athletics, who jumped to the Reds in 1914 when released by Connie Mack to Baltimore. Houck could revert to Baltimore should Jack Dunn care to claim him, but evidently he does not. Houck had a sad experience with the Reds. He thought he had an iron-clad contract, but it was repudiated and he had to settle on a cash basis calling for about half of what he had contracted for.

The present position of the Cleveland club shows that there is as much sentiment in baseball as there ever was—approximately one-tenth of one per cent.

Let everybody rise! Here's a compliment for an Athletic pitcher. Some one asked Bobby Veach to name the six greatest pitchers he ever batted against, and Bobby replied, "Johnson, Galla, Leonard, Wellman, Scott and Wyckoff."

The subject of Indians came up when Foster was asked what the New York club proposed to do with Jim Bluejacket, the pitcher, whose unconditional release by the Brooklyn Federalists will send him back to the Giants. The Giants bought Bluejacket from the Bloomington club of the Three Eye league and instead of reporting to McGraw, Jim hopped to the Brookfords. The New York club refused to pay Bloomington, but the national commission decided in favor of the minor leaguers. This decision will make the Indian revert to the Giants by the terms of the peace agreement.

"What was the most dramatic moment of your life?" some one asked Frank Moran the other day. Jim Coffey was standing at his side and nine out of ten of those who were listening expected to see Moran turn to Coffey and say:

"When I saw you on the floor taking the count, Jim."

But Moran didn't say that. "I'll tell you of the most dramatic moment of my life," he said. "It was in a little school in Pittsburgh when I was a tyke. A crooked pin had some astray, so far astray indeed that the dear lady teacher sat down and went heavenward with a shriek that would have awakened the dead. She bolted out of the room and we sat, awaiting developments. Suddenly the door was jerked open and in strutted Mr. Gene Treadwell, the principle. He held a long rod in his hands, garished on the end with a cat-o-nine-tails.

"There is vengeance in my eye. Vengeance will I seek, if I have to obtain it at the end of this rod," he shouted. "STEP OUT, MORAN!" he shouted.

"Was it YOU?" asked Coffey meekly. "Was it ME?" laughed Moran. "NO, it wasn't me. It's a mistake."

Information of the art of javelin hurling will be taught American athletes by James F. Anderson, a Swede. He is studying Yankee methods of training athletes for the track. Anderson will visit all the important colleges and athletic clubs to gather data. He will then give instructions in the use of the javelin.

CITY COUNCILMAN.

When the city of Janesville four years ago voted to adopt the commission form of government in place of the old fashioned aldermanic council, they took a step forward. The results obtained during the four years this new regime has been in vogue has more than justified the change made and there is no question that the tax payers are the beneficiaries of the city government conducted in a business manner by a mayor and two councilmen rather than a council of ten with the mayor as a mere figurehead.

On April 4th we are about to elect a new councilman for a term of six years. The one great underlying principle of any business is to select the best man available for the position. The one best qualified for the business to be handled. It is a question of efficiency that is at stake. Leaving all personalities aside the selection of a councilman is a strictly business proposition, first, last and always.

There is no question of politics or personalities, simply fitness for the office that is to be considered. Roy M. Cummings has had four years' experience in the duties of the office. He has been a painstaking and faithful public servant. He served three years as city clerk previous to his election as councilman, making him thoroughly acquainted with all of the city's business and an invaluable man to carry on the work of city government.

Mr. Cummings is the young man's candidate. He is an enthusiastic worker and thorough equipment for the position he seeks, and it is to be hoped he will be given an endorsement at the polls election day that will demonstrate that the voters of the city are looking after their own business interests and not being swayed by personalities in selecting a man to fill such an important office as councilman.

HOUSE IS BACK.

Colonel Edward M. House, maker of cabinets, confidential adviser, and ambassador-at-large in full charge without responsibility is the manner in which Colonel George Harvey, "the original Wilson man" refers, in the "North American Review," to Mr. Wilson's peripatetic plenipotentiary who has arrived in Washington. Colonel Harvey might have added the adjective unconstitutional for the appointment of Colonel House without the advice and consent of the senate is unquestionably a violation of the spirit of the constitution, as it is a reflection on the men appointed to the diplomatic corps by Mr. Wilson and an open confession of Mr. Wilson's own distrust of them. Had Mr. Wilson permitted the competent ambassadors and ministers whom he found in office to retain their places until the close of the European war, or had he chosen their successors with a view to their fitness and ability, instead of solely from political expediency, there would have been no occasion to send Colonel House to Europe to review their work and reform their practices. But he has sent Colonel House twice to Europe and thereby confessed his own lack of confidence in the Indiana statesman. He has tried and experienced Herrick at Paris, the fulsome Page, who represents the United States at London, when he is not writing panegyrics of Woodrow Wilson for World's Work, et al. It is only the existence of the "secret fund" in the state department—designed, of course, for wholly different purposes—which has enabled the president to send his friend and sponsor, Colonel House, on these deplorable junkets, but as this misappropriation of that fund is, in spirit and not in letter, no serious consequences are likely to follow—until November 7th.

PAPER SHORTAGE.

A conference of paper manufacturers recently issued an appeal to the public to save old paper, rags, and other raw material of paper. They called attention to the great amount of such material wasted, and describe feelingly the scramble of the paper makers for the stock needed to fill orders.

Comparatively few people save paper as they once did. Formerly house-holders had a thrifty little account with the junk man, and the dicker with him was a part of the household routine. Many grown-ups recall how on rainy days as children, they would be set to sorting out white rags from the colored, one class bringing a better price than the other. If mixed they all went in at the low price, which the thrifty housewife could not stand for. The few coins gained would look trifling now. But material was conserved and prices kept down.

During recent years the collecting of old newspapers has been undertaken as a money-raising scheme in behalf of churches and other societies. Many people can be interested to save paper for this purpose who would not do it for their own profit. It is popular in the country where ready money is often scarce, and church funds come slow.

It is a very simple matter to file away old papers in the attic and save them for the Ladies' Aid society. The amount of paper and paper stock that goes through the average home is very considerable in these days, when so many newspapers, magazines, circulars, and packages come in. The proceeds may not be large. But to organize such collections for a public cause does not require any great amount of labor.

The net result is a conservation of resources and the removal of a lot of rubbish from the streets.

It is economically profitable to the community. This cannot be said of all the suppers and entertainments conducted for public causes.

THE BANDIT HUNT.

The situation along the Mexican border is in the lap of the gods, as the old saying goes. It may mean much to the United States, but it means little to the Mexicans.

The Mexicans are hunting for Villa, but they are not hunting for him in the way the restless Mexicans will feel a respect for Uncle Sam they have not known since the invasion of 1847. But meanwhile our expeditionary forces are hunting for vermin with a lighted match in a dark room.

Can they keep the sparks out of the fiery Mexican temperament?

Long experience with the red Indian and the Filipino has made our army men familiar with the game. The mountains of Sonora and Chihuahua will be raked with a fine tooth comb. Villa and his men can live indefinitely on roots and bark, and must come out from cover.

Our people will have to pay the price. In a pitched battle, the losses are likely to be the landing place of death.

The Mexicans would never be heavy. It used to be said, white Huerta and Villa were fighting, that after a battle the men would play cards instead of preparing for the morrow's engagement.

But a long pursuit through mountain country will bring its sad toll of our boys. Every tree and stone is likely to be the landing place of death.

Our men, however, are cool and brainy. They will play the game as cleverly as it was ever played by the wily old Sioux or Iroquois. The Mexicans are hot-headed and will throw their lives away on impulse.

Funston and Pershing have a task that is quite as much diplomatic and political as military. If they can only make the Mexicans see it, their expedition is bound to succeed.

Villa out of the way, the store of American money and an electrical current of human energy are ready to pour into this fertile land when the ruffian and the assassin have been put down. The expedition will tell the Mexicans a few things about Uncle Sam that the present generation never knew before.

Formerly a minister had to do as much to preach sermons. Now as he does not do anything but preach, visit the sick, superintend Sunday school, and lead the choir, there is a feeling that he should get up the entertainments and prepare the church suppers.

It is believed that aeroplanes will be promptly sent out to locate Villa as soon as the money is appropriated for them, the building contracts for the army and army taught how to operate them.

It is claimed that two jobs are seeking one man all over the country, but Dusty Rhodes, Wandering Willie, and others of the leisure class are usually successful in eluding such pursuers.

The boy who bangs around the school house during spring vacation may not be actuated so much by love of school scenes, as by the desire to put a rock through the window.

The coming of the ball team from Waseda university, Tokio, will enable the American people to see how far the higher education has been successful in Japan.

The machine guns wouldn't work when the raid occurred at Columbus, N. M., but the good, round check that paid for them no doubt worked all right.

The fact that you can't raise $40,000 to buy the poet Longfellow's birthplace doesn't prove that you couldn't raise $400,000 in many cities for a ball park.

It looks as if this punitive expedition in pursuit of Villa would get down there in sufficient time to teach a severe lesson to the innocent bystanders.

Another way in which Father observed last week was by walking the village infant and down the house for a half hour beginning at 2:15 a. m.

Villa may not be able to get any guns from Europe to fight our army with, but there are probably so-called Americans who will supply him.

That heroic mood that T. R. calls for will be demonstrated in case of war by the many people who will urge someone else to enlist.

The Only One.

They say that wealth doesn't always bring happiness, but most of us are willing to try the experiment.—Prof. Simp.

Eddie Thursday, the great evangelist, pounded the table with his fist. "I tell you, men," he repeated, "impatience is the world's greatest vice! It's a rough-necked, lantern-jawed, swelled-headed, joy-browed, bald-headed curse! In great assemblage where a man in this great assemblage has never spoken a cross word to his wife, he is here one, I ask you, a guilty silence fell on the immense crowd of men."

Some looked the other way, some closed their eyes, a few hardened ones looked the same way.

"Is there one, I ask?" bellowed Eddie Thursday.

There was another silence, somewhat more guilty than the first, and then a general-faced, stout man arose.

"Brother, I am proud of you," shouted Eddie Thursday.

The sunny-faced man coughed. "Perhaps, I ought to say that I am a bachelor," he said apologetically. Snatching up the top-gallon water pitcher, Eddie Thursday drained it as a draught while seven ushers made a dive for the stout man.

BRADFORD

Bradford, March 23.—Thursday afternoon March 23rd, the German Lutheran church at Clinton, Wis., commemorated the marriage of Fred Wolf of Sharon and Miss Pauline Roehl of Bradford. In the evening a large reception was given to the young couple at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Roehl. Mr. and Mrs. Wolf will go to housekeeping at once on the groom's farm, near Sharon. They take with them to their new home the best wishes of all their friends.

WESTERN FINANCIERS PLANNING TO ESTABLISH FOREIGN BRANCH BANKS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Chicago, March 23.—Middle western financiers today were planning the establishment of American banks in foreign countries as an aid to extending the overseas market of enterprising manufacturers.

Arrangements are already being made for establishing one in South America. Illinois capital will be largely interested. John J. Arnold, vice-president of the First National bank of Chicago, declares that it probably will be located in Buenos Ayres.

It is planned to locate the parent bank of these foreign branch banks here, as the most convenient point for the financial and industrial interests of the middle west. From twenty to forty million dollars, it was estimated, will be subscribed by from twenty to thirty middle western bankers, to back the proposition.

The federal reserve board already has recommended to congress that the bank act be so amended as to permit member banks of the federal reserve system and the federal reserve banks to subscribe to and hold stock in institutions organized for the purpose of doing a banking business in foreign countries.

MAKE PREPARATIONS FOR MEMORIAL DAY

G. A. R. and Spanish War Veterans Propose to Secure Co-operation of Lodges and Schools.

Under the direction of a joint committee of the G. A. R. and U. S. W. V. composed of J. R. Carter, Chas. A. Riker, Arthur R. Heesegue, C. Buchholz, Albert Nott and D. H. Everman, efforts are being made to secure the co-operation of the lodges and societies of Janesville as well as the public schools in celebrating Memorial Day appropriately. A meeting of representatives of the various orders has been called for Friday evening at eight o'clock at the East Side Odd Fellows' Hall, when an organization will be perfected and plans formulated.

Following is the letter which has been sent out by the joint committee to the lodges and other organizations: "Gentlemen:—

"It has been a custom for time immemorial to pay tribute to the dead on some day of the year.

"Since 1868 it has been the custom of the Grand Army to do this on the 30th day of May.

"Mr. Thomas Baker Aldrich says: 'Decoration Day is the most beautiful of our National Holidays. The impulse which led us to set apart a day to the decorating the graves of our soldiers sprang from the griefed heart of the nation and in our time there is little chance of the rite being neglected. But the generations that come after us should not allow the observance to fall into disuse. What with us is an expression of fresh love and sorrow should be with them an acknowledgment of debt.'

"The hanks of the Grand Army are being rapidly thinned.

"The custom of observing May 30th as a day for paying tribute to the dead is a noble wish to transmit to future generations.

"We, as a joint committee of the W. H. Sargent Post, G. A. R., and Harry L. Gifford Camp, U. S. W. V., respectfully ask if your organization will assist us in properly celebrating Memorial Day by appointing a committee of three members to act with a joint committee from all other lodges and societies in the city, and especially the schools.

"Appoint your committee and have them attend this joint meeting on March 24th, at 8 p. m., at the East Side Odd Fellows' Hall, when an organization will be perfected to formulate plans."

Signed by the Committee.

CHANGES ARE MADE IN CITY LIGHTING

Changing Many Lights in Resident District Under the New System.

Changes are now being made in the lighting system of Janesville. Street lights are being installed and replaced this week in the second and third wards. Under the new plans it is planned to have 449 one hundred candle-power incandescent lights, six 250 candle-power and eight 450 candle-power lights, besides the one hundred and thirty lights in the ornamental system. The 450 candle-power lights are used at the railroad crossings.

In many places it will be necessary to have trees trimmed to make the lights fully effective in the residence district. Mayor James A. Fathens has been working to get the secret of successful street lighting hinged on the number of trees and branches and that a great deal of tree trimming would be necessary. Lights have been placed on nearly every street intersection and at intermediate points where needed. The 250 candle-power lights are installed at points where there is a hazardous crossing or where there is a long stretch.

"We are ready to start work on installing the new down town lights as soon as the standards are received," said Mayor Fathens. There are a number of telephone poles which will have to be taken down from the upper end of West Milwaukee street. Unless the Wisconsin company goes around the poles and has them removed, it is necessary in which to lay the underground. The ordinance passed by the council requires that the poles be cut at the main streets by May 1st, and Mayor Fathens stated that the ordinance would be strictly enforced.

PORTO RICO SUGAR SELLS AT UNIFORM HIGH PRICE IN THE UNITED STATES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

San Juan, Porto Rico, March 23.—Sugar valued at $10.00,000 is being marketed by Porto Rico in the United States at a uniform high price.

Every ship to the United States is carrying capacity loads. The month's deliveries present probably not more than 20 per cent of the value of the sugar this season.

The sugar is being sold on a rising market at prices considerably above $6 per hundred pounds.

Never before in the history of the island has sugar reached such a large crop nor prospects of such uniform high prices. The island's production, it is estimated, will be in the neighborhood of 350,000 tons, an increase of approximately 75,000 tons over last year. And under present market conditions it is expected that the whole crop will be sold at an average of five cents per pound, or better.

Large sales this week were reported at $5.22 San Juan, equal to $5.40 New York.

Labor troubles which developed at the beginning of the cane harvest in January have practically all subsided and the grinding season is now at its height. At but one point in the island, Arecibo, are there any labor troubles and these are not expected to be settled at any moment.

In practically every instance the laborers have received an increase in wages, shorter hours of labor. For the first time in the history of the sugar industry the sugar planters have granted the field laborer an eight hour day. One of the largest mills in the island, the Fajardo Sugar Company, has granted its laborers a minimum wage of 75 cents a day on a nine-hour basis. This same company has also placed all of its employees on a wage based on the price of sugar. At ready they have received bonuses as high as thirty percent in addition to their salary.

The cause of the strikes during the present crop, according to the bureau of labor of the insular government, which has just issued a report on it, was due to the fact that at the end of the last grinding season the employers reduced wages to the same scale in force before the 1915 strike and the laborers were again compelled to work for the same former increases. This report indicates that the sugar planters are not at all in proportion with the present prosperity of the sugar men.

MRS. CARRIE CLARK DIES IN THE EAST

Remains Will be Brought Here For Burial—Service at Oak Hill Chapel on Sunday Afternoon.

Frank D. Kimball this morning received a dispatch from Clarence Clark, a former well known Janesville resident, announcing the death of his wife, Mrs. Carrie Dodge Clark, at their home at Roxbury, Mass. The dispatch stated that Mr. Clark would leave Boston Friday afternoon at two o'clock and arrive here Saturday evening. At the request of his wife the funeral services will be conducted on Sunday afternoon at two, at the Oak Hill chapel on Richmond street. The services being read. The interment will be beside the grave of her son, Gardner, who died some years ago.

Mrs. Clark's death will come as a distinct shock to her many friends in this city who knew that she was not in her usual good health, but had no knowledge that her sickness was of a serious nature. She was a daughter of the late Dr. H. H. Clark, many years pastor of the Baptist church in this city and devoted to her music, for many years playing the organ in the Baptist church in this city and at the same time being a member of the left Janesville some six years ago for the east and have made their home at Roxbury, a suburb of Boston. A sister, Mrs. Edward Welch, who has been in the city for some time, left on Sunday to join her sister and had probably just reached her bedside when the end came. Two other sisters, Mrs. John S. Welch and Mrs. D. B. Welch, David Welch of Quincy, Illinois, and a brother, Frederick Dodge, of Kalamazoo, Mich., are left to mourn her loss. A son, Gardner, passed to the world some time ago.

The funeral services will be read at two o'clock Sunday at the Oak Hill chapel and the entire service will be carried out as nearly as possible as Mrs. Clark desired.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME ...

Copyright 1915 by Frank H. Spearman.

Spike was no sooner down than up. He came back at Bill, gauded to fury by the unprovoked attack. Men crowded up. Their cries and shouts had already attracted the attention of Storm and Helen who stood with Rhineland and still discussing Spike. Storm was the first to perceive what was going on in Seagrue's camp.

"They're after Spike," he exclaimed. "Look! Down he goes—that built-necked Bill hit him. He's up again. The whole bunch are jumping him.

Plunged Over the Bridge to the Bottom of the Arroyos.

"They'll kill that fellow. Well," he mused, as the clamor grew and Spike, fighting desperately to keep from being surrounded, went down again. "I suppose he's no great loss."

"But," cried Helen, "we can't see a man murdered before our eyes. I won't stand it. I'll go help him myself if nobody else will."

Undismayed by the undertaking, Helen, followed by Rhineland trying to stop her, hurried toward Seagrue's camp. Storm, with more forethought, hastily got together such of his men as were within hearing, and yelling in his turn to Helen to wait, started after her and Rhineland. Fast as the men ran, none could overtake her flying feet. She dashed into the thick of the fight ahead of everybody and searing Spike, pushed back his assailants.

They stopped an instant from sheer amazement at seeing a lovely girl, seemingly fallen from the sky, in the middle of a hot scrimmage.

for us, will you, as quick as the Lord will let you? We'll hustle him inside one."

Helen ran. Rhineland and Storm, picking up Spike, now almost unconscious, dragged him, fast as they could, from the scene, their men covering their retreat and giving ground only as they were forced to by sheer weight of numbers. Fighting stubbornly step by step in this way, Storm and Rhineland dragging their burden in front of the protesting line—which threatened every moment to give way under the fierce assaults—got Spike to the cut-off track. Helen had reached the engine cab and was ready to pull out the cars. Together the two men threw Spike bodily into the open door of the last car. Climbing aboard after Rhineland, Storm signaled to Helen in the cab. She opened the throttle, and just as Seagrue's angry men reached the car, Storm slammed the door shut and Helen moved the string hastily down the track.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

by DAISY DEAN

Frances Nelson, who has recently starred in "The Point of View," "Life's Crucible," and other pictures, can lay claim to be the youngest portrayer of stormy characters on the screen, as she has only just passed her twentieth year.

Miss Nelson's rise to fame has been meteoric, yet behind it lies much toil to develop her great ability. If genius is "an infinite capacity for taking pains," then Miss Nelson is a genius. She graduated from high school in St. Paul, Minn., not so very long ago and being intent on a stage career, found her first engagement with Lew Fields in "The Wife Hunters." Then she appeared in stock and did leads with Tom Wise. Pictures came next and she has been featured in many big productions. Her favorite sport is swimming and recently she demonstrated her proficiency in this exercise by swimming the Au Sabie chasm when the rapids were boiling perilously.

Helen had kept close to her friends. "We've got to get him out of here quick," exclaimed Storm to her. "They'll tear him limb from limb if they get him again. Helen," he cried. "Back the outfit, cars down the cut-off."

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S "THE CRISIS" FILMED.
At studios in Chicago work has started on "The Crisis," a pictorialization of Winston Churchill's well known book.

George Fawcett and Lionel Atwell, an English actor of note, have been engaged to take the leading parts in support of Bessie Eyton and Thomas Squire.

HUMBLE BEGINNINGS OF GREAT FILM STARS.
William Farnum was a boy cornetist of Buckport, Me. Claire Whitney, before she became an actress on top of the stage, as we say, worked in a hat shop in New York. Stuart Holmes, the prominent villain, worked in a drug store in Chicago. Valaska Suratt once was a milliner at Terre Haute, Ind. Annette Kellerman used to do a diving stunt at summer parks for a weekly wage of $15. James Marcus was a newspaper cartoonist, and not a very good one, at Davenport, Ia.

Miss Edna Mayo for some reason or other has done away with her former becoming style of hair dressing and is now going about her business with her hair combed slicked-back from her forehead in a do the family washing.

Keep your eyes open for Ham and Bud's burlesque on war. Ham as the commanding officer who carries his drink-mixer to the front is surely a ludicrous figure.

'GOLDEN CHANCE' WINS HEARTY APPLAUSE

Cleo Ridgely and Wallace Reid as Co-Stars in Picture.

Spontaneous applause for a picture play is rare, but there were several outbursts of approval at the Apollo last night when "The Golden Chance" was presented with Cleo Ridgely and Wallace Reid in the leading roles.

The story lends itself admirably to picture making and gives Miss Ridgely an opportunity of portraying a role of unusual character. Her characterizations of the misused wife and as the week end guest were much enjoyed.

Wallace Reid is becoming a favorite with a very large audience. His manner, his work and his personality make him a thoroughly satisfying hero. His fight scene here was as thrilling as his duel in Carmen. Cassidy has produced the picture in the wholly competent manner which the public has come to know.

Amusements

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

AT MYERS THEATRE.

The very essence of the American spirit, of American humor, of American character is "It Pays to Advertise." Rol. Cooper, Megrue and Walter Hackett, which comes to the Myers Theatre tonight under the direction of Conan and Harris. If you saw the thing translated into French or German or Chinese there would be no mistaking its origin. And, quite incidentally, no more side-splitting farce has ever been concocted, so it is said. It is described as being one of the plays which provoke real laughter, at which you throw back your head until the top of the spinal column rests upon the back of the neck, or the other way, and it will make laughing any easier, but it appears to afford relief to the system. Like all the best pieces of this kind, "It Pays to Advertise" is founded upon a genuine idea, the idea that is implicit in the title. Moreover, it is an idea that every American of every age, size and sex is interested in.

Not even about wives do tastes differ more thoroughly than about funny plays. There is no arguing about humor. Still, to show the unanimity of opinion about "It Pays to Advertise," it is stated that the only soul who did not like his heart off on witnessing it was George M. Conan, and, considering that he watched every rehearsal, this is hardly a fair test.

The plot of the thing is quite simple. The idle son of a millionaire has a row with his father and goes into business for himself. Father being the head of the soap trust, he decides to go in for soap and fight the trust. He meets a press agent, whose head is full of advertising enthusiasm. He invents a trade-mark, not "the cheapest soap in the world," but "the most expensive." "Tartan Soap Unlucky for Dirt." Now they begin to splurge on advertising it, at one dollar a cake, how they almost go bankrupt before they even so much as make half a cake, how they almost manage to bamboozle father into buying them out, these are all things you must find out for yourself.

The splendid company contains Elsie Gray, M. J. Sullivan, Gertrude Leland, James I. Mitchell, Daniel Anderson, James J. Gardner, Ruby Herriman, H. N. Dudgeon, Felix McClure, Doris Jordan, Page Spencer and Mason Emerson.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Americans are the most restless race in the world, with the exception of the Bedouins, and yet few realize that within their own country there exists a grandeur of mountain scenery that surpasses any thing in the world or any other land offers. It is located in north-western Montana on the Continental Divide. A few years ago Congress set aside the portion of our national domain and turned it to Glacier National Park—thus preserving for all time one of the grandest of nature's wonderlands. It is this splendid heritage of the American people that for the first time has been filmed adequately and will be presented by Lyman H. Howe at the Myers Theatre on March 24, 25, matinee Saturday.

"TO THE ROOF OF AMERICA"

(GLACIER NATIONAL PARK)
with LYMAN H. HOWE
TO BE SEEN HERE IN A FEW DAYS

Entirely aside from its wondrous scenic beauty, the scenes are of absorbing interest also because they show the activities of the Blackfeet Indians who inhabit Glacier National Park.

As is characteristic of Mr. Howe's popular exhibition a great variety of other scenes will be presented among which he promises a distinct novelty and the latest discovery of the possibilities of motion photography—the movements of animals photographed at eight times the "normal" speed at which film is exposed. The result shows just how a kangaroo, goat, dog, etc., runs and leaps but shows it so slowly that the animal seems suspended in the air. It is a most weird and curious yet instructive nature study on films which show more than the human eye with its much slower vision could ever detect. Then, too, there will be pictorial pilgrimages to Madeira, Southern France, Friesland (Holland), Swiss Alps and through an immense auto-motive plant the Willys-Overland; also a flight in an aeroplane above the clouds; curious chemical formations; logging in Italy; and a torpedo boat plunging through a stormy sea. Besides, the wholesome humor of Howe's cartoons will contribute to ever welcome film fun by way of contrast to the more dignified scenes.

A word to the wise—to those who advertise. Use want ads every day; our word for it, they'll surely pay.

THE BATTLE CRY OF PEACE COMING HERE

Apollo Announces the Date of a Wonderfully Spectacular and Timely Picture.

The management of the Apollo announces tonight the coming of "The Battle Cry of Peace," the nine part photo play spectacle which has stirred the country from one end to the other in its call to arms against war.

"The Battle Cry of Peace" is a photo spectacle with a mission. It was written and produced by J. Stuart Blackton, president of the Vitagraph company, in an effort to wake in every American a desire to protect his loved ones. The story, based on Hudson Maxims book, "Defenseless America," is educational in its description of submarines, aeroplanes, torpedo boats and other implements of warfare. It compares America to other countries and shows with a clearness the comparative size of our army and navy. Hudson Maxims appears, and by means of small models illustrates on the screen the needs of our country.

A love theme accompanies Mr. Maxims' instructive story.

(1) If the boy is a friend of long standing I can see nothing wrong in your putting something in the box which his parents sent him.

(2) It would be perfectly all right.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are girls of fourteen and we wish to know if it is proper for girls of our age to go to slumber parties?

(2) What should be served at midnight lunch at a slumber party?

(3) It is proper to help the hostess get breakfast?

(4) Should we wear our party dresses to a slumber party?

(5) What time should we go to our homes (the day after the slumber party)?

(6) Sandwiches and hot chocolate.

(7) Unless she tells you she does not want you to.

(8) Unless there is a party in the evening.

(9) About ten o'clock the next morning.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) When you are going to have just the nearest relatives, your wedding should you send them an invitation or is it all right to just tell them that they are invited?

(2) Who should buy the flowers for the bride and bridesmaid?

(3) How can you make rough elbows smooth? TRUE BLUE.

(4) It is all right to tell them that they are invited.

(5) The groom.

(6) Rubbing the joint every night with almond oil or some other application equally soothing is most essential. A stiff flesh brush should be used regularly, every day being used too often, and a face soap must be put on sufficiently to make a thorough lather, with plenty of hot water.

(7) This done at night, frictioning with bristles should be followed by carefully drying with a soft cloth. Then while the surface is still warm, and the pores open, an oil should be rubbed in. To do this a few drops may be rubbed into the palm of the hand and this rubbed over the joint until as much grease as the skin will hold has been absorbed. It is well to complete the entire operation on one arm before commencing on the other.

I shouldn't think you would care to have friends who are such snobs that they look down upon you, who is capable. Consider your mother's feelings in preference to theirs.

are not always the worst. To bring up a child in any place where it can't have its share of the outdoor world isn't an offense against the laws of man, but it certainly is against the laws of nature. And lest that shall not be a strong appeal to some women (I hesitate to give them the name "mother"), let me add another word. It is also an offense against style and breeding. It is "the thing" now to give the child a chance of the outdoors as well as the indoors, and it is a mark of good breeding (superficial as well as real) to have children with healthy bodies and sound, rosy cheeks.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Talcum powder boxes make fine pepper and salt shakers and are splendid for any kind of application as they are light. Open them where the top joins the body part and after you once have them open they will open and close easily afterward.

Small Coat—For the dressing table, a plain pine kitchen table can be purchased for as low as $1.50. Give this two coats of flat white. After this is well hardened add a coat of white enamel. Treat an old mirror in the same way, and hang above the table. This, with a bedstead painted to match makes a very dainty set, and at so low a cost that anyone can have the freshest summer chambers.

Potato Chickens—Six medium-sized potatoes, one-fourth teaspoonful pepper, one teaspoon salt, three tablespoons butter, one-third cup hot milk. The potatoes should be mashed and thoroughly pared and kept in cold water until ready to cook. This keeps them fresh and crisp and prevents their turning dark. Boil potatoes, drain, mash in sauce pan in which they are boiled. Season, add hot milk gradually, beat until light and creamy and pile on a hot dish with smooth top. Form in the shape of little chickens, using tiny pieces of beet for the eyes and lemon rind for the beaks. Place in a nest of parsley.

Fish Pond (new)—Put in a sauce pan one pint milk, one can fish flakes and one cup shredded red peppers that have been cooked until tender. (Canned pimientos will do as well as fresh sweet peppers.) Heat mixture slowly, adding salt, butter and sufficient flour or cornstarch thickening to make a thin gravy. Keep mixture hot until serving time. Have ready cold boiled potatoes, sliced and creamed in usual way (a thick sauce is best for potatoes used for this dish). Arrange potatoes around outer edge of deep platter, forming a bank for the "fish pond." Pour fish and pepper mixture in the center. Garnish with parsley.

Macaroni and French Chestnuts—One dozen chestnuts, blanched and boiled until tender; chop fine. Add chestnuts to four cups cooked macaroni. Melt two tablespoons butter, stir in two tablespoons flour, add half cup milk, stir until thick in a sauce. Add chestnuts, grated cheese, and three tablespoons grated cheese. Season, turn out on plate to cool, shape into croquettes, fry in hot fat or olive oil.

Horticultural Leaf—Mix two cups beans with three chopped pimientos, one cup bread crumbs cooked to a puree, season with pepper, teaspoon salt, grated lemon rind, teaspoon drops of onion juice. Beat yolks of two eggs well, add to mixture, fold in stiffly beaten whites, pile into well oiled bread tin, set in moderate oven, cook until firm. Serve with tomato sauce.

THE TABLE.
Sumk—Similar buttermilk but much more delicious and nourishing.

THE MOST HARMFUL ANTISEPTICS.

Gradually we are overcoming the hoary old superstition that anything with a powerful odor will keep off disease. And the best of our modern antiseptics or germicides are odorless. Carbolic acid, in solution or in solid form, has a nice, healing sort of odor, if you like that sort of smell. But it is one of the most harmful antiseptics you can use.

Carbolic acid is an alcohol, not an acid. Phenol is the official name for it. It received the name of "acid," because of its caustic effect in contact with living tissue. The local anesthetic for that caustic or burning effect is alcohol—grain alcohol. One may bathe the finger with pure phenol for a minute, and when it has turned white, bathe it with pure alcohol, and the effect is completely neutralized. Remember that, in the event of an accidental burn with carbolic, the remedy is alcohol, freely and continuously applied.

This caustic action of phenol renders it utterly unfit for antiseptic use. No one would think of dressing a wound with carbolic dressings nowadays, unless he were willing to assume responsibility for any poisonous effect which might ensue. A strong carbolic acid solution, kept for a considerable time on a simple out or wound, sometimes causes gangrene. It always delays healing, because of its caustic effect on the skin cells. Carbolic was the original antiseptic introduced into surgery by the Father of Antisepsis, Lord Lister. But Lister himself eventually learned the lesson that there is no longer justification for employing it as an antiseptic, whatever other uses it may have.

It is made by putting fresh unskinned milk in an air-tight jar and keeping in a warm place till clabbered, then removing to a cold place till wanted, when it is whipped with an egg beater till creamy.

Gran Coffee—One quart of bran mixed thoroughly with two table-spoons of baking molasses. Brown slowly in a frying pan, until deep brown for each cup of coffee wanted. Boil twenty minutes.

Peanut Butter Soup—Three cups milk, one cup water, one-half cup peanut butter, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon onion, one tablespoon cornstarch, pepper. While the milk is heating mix the peanut butter with hot water until smooth, then add to boiling milk, mix the cornstarch with a little cold milk, add to hot milk, add salt, pepper, nutmeg, boil three minutes. Serve.

Dresser Trays—Buy at the ten-cent store a small picture frame which has a depth, but no top handles and no glass. Insert under the glass a piece of cretonne or a bit of crocheted lace with silk backing, in place of the picture originally in the frame. This makes a pretty tray for the dresser. By adding a larger frame for a brush and comb tray, you have as pretty a set as one could desire.

Winter Salad—Lettuce leaves, cooked carrots, salt and pepper. Next chateau or cream cheese, mayonnaise dressing. Use quantities and prepare according to taste.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS MEET IN FOND DU LAC

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Fond du Lac, Wis., March 23.—About three hundred Sunday school workers of the Fond du Lac district of the Methodist-Episcopal church met today for the two-day institute being conducted by the Board of Sunday schools of the church. The Sunday school of the Division Street Methodist church, where the conference is being held, is one of the leaders in the work in the state.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., March 23.—The use of artificial silk made directly from wood is increasing rapidly and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, maintained by the United States government in this city, is conducting an extensive investigation of the artificial silk problem as a possibility for utilizing wood waste. It has on hand a variety of articles made from this material.

Originally artificial silk made from wood was used principally in the making of braids and trimmings, but recently the manufacture of hose from the product has become of vast importance according to experts at the laboratory.

It is also used in linings, tapestries, neckties, ribbons, sweater coats and woven goods of all kinds. About 5,500,000 pounds are being used each year in this country.

There are several methods for manufacture of artificial silk but that from wood pulp is usually made by treating the pulp with caustic lye, after which it is dissolved in carbon disulphide. The lye is diluted with more caustic lye to form a viscose, which is allowed to age for some time. It is then

GINGLES' JINGLES

A MAN.

Are you playing your part in the way that you should? Are you boosting for good? Are you what you should be as a man? Can you face a calamity calmly and smile? Have you learned to be patient and brave? Are you adding each day to the record on file, memorandums you're proud you can save? Can you say, "Though I've failed, I shall rise from the crash determined to stick and to win; although I have lost my last dollar in cash, and must at the bottom begin, I'll face my reverses, I'll never give up, I'll show in a pinch I am there, though misery and bitterness fill my cup—I'll play to the finish, but fair? Have you turned from the darkness and facing the sun, showed us you are sure that 'you can't' Have you fought a good fight? Have you conquered and won? Have you proved to the world you're a man. (SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Iowa City, Ia., March 23.—Under Iowa's new law to give free treatment to crippled children, 147 little ones are being treated at the state university. The law is but five months old. At present there are seventy children in the ward. Over sixty-five per cent of the cases are the result of the infant paralysis epidemic of five years ago. The little patients come to the hospital in various conditions. Some have lost only the use of their legs. A complete school system of eight grades has been established with nurses as teachers to educate the little ones as they improve in health.

IOWA TREATS CRIPPLED CHILDREN AT UNIVERSITY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Washington, March 23.—The addition of Mayor Baker of Cleveland as secretary of war spite the cabinet evenly on the subject of smoking, giving President Wilson the deciding vote. Secretary Baker is a pipe-smoker. Prior to Baker's arrival the cabinet anti-smokers had control by a vote of 10 to 8. As the president does not smoke and as he holds the balance of power, there is no smoking at cabinet meetings even now.

Baker, Lansing, Secretary Wilson, Lane and Houston, smoke. The non-smokers are Redfield, Daniels, McAdoo, Burleson and Gregory.

There has been no smoking at a cabinet meeting during the terms of the last three presidents, Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson, all non-smokers.

INDIAN CAYUSE DESCENDED FROM ROYAL ARABIAN HORSE

Pendleton, Ore., March 23.—The Indian cayuse, that scrawny, shaggy paint pony of western melodrama, has real Arabian blood in his veins, said Mrs. Eva Emory Dye, Oregon historian.

The cayuse, she said, is descended directly from Arabian horses introduced among the Pacific coast Indians by Spaniards two centuries ago. Mrs. Dye has learned that a real Arabian horse has one less vertebrae in his spine and two less in his tail than the ordinary plug. So has the cayuse, sometimes. Mrs. Dye hopes to prove it is the rare rather than the exception for cayuses to be "foreshortened" in this manner.

AN UNNATURAL MOTHER.

"Take the children somewhere into the country, among green grass and yellow wheat, among trees by hills and streams, if you wish their highest education, that of the heart and soul to be completed."—Richard Jefferies.

One of the most pathetic children I ever saw was a little girl whose father probably makes five thousand dollars a year.

The family lives in a New York apartment, five or six stories up, in one of those apartments with a dark bedroom, and of course no veranda. The street below is a crowded city street, so it is impossible for the little girl to play there, and there wasn't so much as a dog to be divided

INSIDE THE LINES

By
EARL DERR BIGGERS
AND
ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Founded on Earl Derr Biggers' Play of the Same Name

Woodhouse read right over the name and turned another page a bit impatiently. This he scanned with seeming eagerness, while the clerk touched with pen poised.

"Well, sir, the Princess Mary is due to sail at dawn day after tomorrow," the Greek answered judiciously. "She is reported at Port Said today, but, of course, the war—"

Woodhouse turned away.

But you wish a room, sir—nice room, with bath, overlooking—

"No."

"You expected to find a friend, then?"

"Not here," Woodhouse returned brusquely, and passed out into the blinding square.

He strode swiftly around the statue of Mehmet Ali and plunged into the crowd, a crowd filling a side street.

With a sense of direction, he threaded the narrow alleyways, and by-streets until he had come to the hazy part of the mongrel city, near the Rosetta Gate. There he turned into a narrow street, and a few steps far from the disordered pulse of the city's heart, a sort of pension, it was, known only to the occasional discriminating tourist.

Maitre Mougere was proud of the anonymity his house pre-ferred, and abhorred poor Mougere's slaves as he would a plague.

In his Cap de Liberte one was lost to all the world of Alexandria.

Remembering directions he had received, Woodhouse threaded the shaded streets until he reached a stone gateway set in a high wall. On one of the pillars a small brass plate was inset. By the light of a nearby lamp, Woodhouse read the inscription on it:

EMIL KOCH, M. D.,
32 Queen's Terrace.

He threw back his shoulders with a sudden gesture, which might have been taken for that of a man about to take a plunge, and rang the bell.

The heavy door, opening into the space of the arch, was opened by a tall Numidian in house livery of white. He nodded an affirmative to Woodhouse's question, and led the way through an avenue of flag doors, a biscuit to a house, set far back under heavy shadow of acacias. On every hand were gardens, rank foliage shutting off this walled yard from the street, and neighboring dwellings.

The heavy gate closed behind the visitor with a sharp snap. One might have said that Doctor Koch lived in great security.

Woodhouse was shown into a small room off the main hall, by its furnishings and position evidently a waiting-room for the doctor's patients. The Numidian bowed, and disappeared. Alone, Woodhouse rose and strolled aimlessly about the room, tipped the covers of magazines on the table, picked up and hefted the bronze Buddha on the onyx mantle noted, with a careless glance, the position of the two windows in relation to the entrance door and the folding doors, now shut, which doubtless gave on the consultation room. As he was regarding these doors they rolled back and a short, thickest man, with a heavy mane of iron-gray hair and black brush of beard stood between them. He looked at Woodhouse through thick-lensed glasses, which were to his stare a curiously intent bent.

"My office hours are from two to four, afterwards," Doctor Koch said. He spoke in English, but his speech was hurried by a slight heaviness on the lips, a question, reminiscent of his mother tongue. The doctor did not ask Woodhouse to enter the consultation room, but continued standing between the folding doors, staring fix-ly through his thick lenses.

"I know that, Doctor," Woodhouse began apologetically, following the physician's lead and turning his tongue to English. "But you see, in a case like mine I have to intrude."

It was "intrude" and "intrude" as Woodhouse gave these words—"because I could not be here during your office hours. You will pardon?"

Doctor Koch's eyes widened just perceptibly at the hint of a Germanic strain in his visitor's speech, just as he quickly glossed over. But still he remained standing in his former attitude of annoyance.

"Well, sir, the sun, then, too hot to permit you to come to my house during regular office hours? At nights I see no patients—positively none."

The sun—perhaps," Woodhouse replied guardedly. "But as I happened

just to arrive today from Marseille, and your name was strongly recommended to me as one to consult in a case such as mine, I am naturally anxious to see you."

"Where was my name recommended to you, and by whom?" Doctor Koch interrupted in sudden interest.

Woodhouse looked at him steadily, "In Berlin—and by a friend of yours, he answered.

"Indeed?" The doctor stepped back from the doors, and motioned his visitor into the consultation room.

Woodhouse stepped into a large room lighted by a single green-shaded reading lamp, which threw a white circle of light straight down upon a litter of thin-bladed scalpels in a glass dish not disinfected on a table.

The shadowy outlines of an operating chair, of high-shouldered bookcases, and the dull glint of instruments in a long glass case were almost imperceptible because of the centering of light on the table.

Doctor Koch dragged a chair out from the shadows, and, carefully enough, placed it in the area of radiance; he motioned Woodhouse to sit.

The physician leaned carefully against an arm of the operating chair; his face was in the shadow save where reflected light shone from his glasses, giving them the aspect of detached

"So, a friend—a friend in Berlin told you to consult me, eh? Berlin is a long way from Hamlet—especially in these times. Greater physicians than I live in Berlin. Why?"

"My friend in Berlin told me you were the only physician who could help me in my peculiar trouble," Woodhouse answered.

"What is the trouble?" Doctor Koch asked.

"I have a peculiar trouble," Woodhouse answered.

"What is it?" Doctor Koch asked.

"I have a peculiar trouble," Woodhouse answered.

stance, did not hesitate overmuch to recognize you, and I am under the eyes of the English here at every turn, even though I am a naturalized Egyptian—don't you know?"

"He finished with a booming laugh."

"But Woodhouse, you have arranged a way to have him drop out of sight before the Princess Mary sails? There will be no confusion—no slip-up?"

"Do not fear," the physician reassured. "Everything will be arranged. His baggage will leave the Hotel Khedive for the dock tomorrow night; but it will not reach the dock. Yours—"

"Will be awaiting the transfer of tags at the Cap de Liberte—Mougere's little place," the captain finished. "But the man himself—you're not thinking of—"

"My dear Nineteen Thirty-two," Doctor Koch interrupted, lifting protesting hands. "We do not use such language here. You are a patient."

The real Captain Woodhouse will not leave Alexandria—by sea, let us say—for many months. Although I have no doubt he will not be found in Alexandria, the hour the Princess Mary sails. The papers he carries—the papers of identity and of transfer from Wady Halfa to Gibraltar—will be in your hands in plenty of time."

The doctor stopped abruptly. A hidden electric buzzer somewhere in the shadowed room was clucking an alarm. Koch pressed a button at the side of the operating chair. There was a sound of a door opening, and some one passing through a hallway; the front door opened and closed.

"Some one at the gate," Doctor Koch explained. "Caesar, my playful little Numidian—an Arab. With the Bedouin dagger is Caesar—he goes to answer."

Their talk was desultory during the next minutes. The doctor seemed restless under the suspense of a pending announcement as to the late visitor. Finally came a soft tapping on the hidden door behind Woodhouse. The latter heard the doctor exchange whispers with the Numidian in the hallway. "Finally," Show him into the waiting-room," Koch ordered. He came back to where the captain was sitting, a puzzled frown between his eyes.

"An Englishman, Caesar says—an Englishman, who insists on seeing me—very important," Koch hit the end of one stubby thumb in hurried thought. He suddenly swung open the door of one of the instrument cases, pulled out a stethoscope, and hooked the two little black receivers into his ears. Then he turned to Woodhouse.

"Quick! Off with your coat and open your shirt. You are a patient; I am just examining you when interrupted. This may be one of those clumsy English secret-service men, and you must need your shirt open."

The sound of an opening door beyond the folding doors and of footsteps in the adjoining room.

"You say you are sleepless at night?" Doctor Koch was talking English. "And you have a temperature on arising? Hmm! This under your tongue, if you please—he thrust his hand into Woodhouse's shirt, and searched; examination of his scarab pin—that would not be pleasant."

He tried to hear what was being said beyond the folding doors, but he caught nothing save the deep rumble of the doctor's occasional bass and a higher, querulous voice raised in what might be argument. Had he dared, Woodhouse would have drawn closer to the crack in the folding doors so that he could hear what was passing; every instinct of self-preservation in him made his ears yearn to dissect this murmur into sense. But if Doctor Koch should catch him eavesdropping, embarrassment fatal to his plans might follow; besides, he had a feeling that eyes he could not see—perhaps the unwinking eyes of the Numidian—avid for an excuse to put into practice his dexterity with the Bedouin dagger—were on him.

Minutes slipped by. The captain still nursed the clinical thermometer. The mumble and muttering continued to sound through the closed doors. Suddenly the high whine of the unseen visitor was raised in excitement. Came clearly through to Woodhouse's ears his passionate declaration:

"But I tell you you've got to recognize me. My number's Nineteen Thirty-two. My ticket was stolen out of the heap of my cane somewhere between Paris and Alexandria. I got it from the Wilhelmstrasse direct, with orders to report to Doctor Emil Koch, in Alexandria!"

Capper, Capper, who was to be betrayed to the firing squad in Italy after his Wilhelmstrasse ticket, passed from his possession. Capper on the job!

Woodhouse hurried every foot pound of his will to hear into his ears. He caught Koch's grunt in answer.

"Young man, you're talking mad-ness. You're talking to a loyal British subject. I know nothing about your Wilhelmstrasse or your number. If I did not think you were drunk I'd have you held here, to be turned over to the military as a spy. Now, go before I change my mind."

Again the querulous protestation of Capper, met by the doctor's empty order. The captain heard the front door close. A long wait, and Doctor Koch's black beard, with the surmounting eyes of thick glass, appeared at a parting of the folding doors. Woodhouse, the tiny thermometer still sticking absurdly from his mouth, met the basilisk stare of those two ovals of glass with a coldly casual glance. He removed the thermometer from between his lips and read it, with a smile, as if that were part of playing a game. Still the ghastly stare from the glass eyes over the bristling beard, searching—

"Well," Woodhouse said lightly, "no need of an alibi evidently."

Doctor Koch stepped into the room with the lightness of a cat, walked to a desk drawer at one side, and fumbled there a second, his back to his guest. When he turned he held a short-barreled automatic at his hip; the muzzle covered the shirt-sleeved man in the chair.

"Much need—for an alibi—from you!" Doctor Koch croaked, his voice dry and flat with rage. "Much need, Mister Nineteen Thirty-two. Commence your explanation immediately for this minute my temptation is strong—very strong—to shoot you for the dog you are."

"Is this—ah, customary?" Woodhouse twiddled the tiny mercury tube between his fingers and looked unflinchingly at the small round mouth of the automatic. "Do you make a practice of consulting a friend with a revolver at your hip?"

"You heard—what was said in there!" Koch's forehead was curiously ridged and flushed with much blood.

"Did you ask me to listen? Surely, my dear Doctor, you have provided doors that are sound-proof. If I may suggest, isn't it about time that you explain this—this melodrama?" The captain's voice was cold; his lips were drawn to a thin line. Koch's big head moved from side to side with a gesture curiously like that of a bull about a charge, but knowing where his enemy stands. He blurted out:

(To be continued.)

How To Get Rid of a Bad Cough

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly, Cheap and Easily Made

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (30 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.

The above mixture makes a full pint supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 34 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. Also quickly heals the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and soothes the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and winter children like it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in quaiaccol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Forty Years Ago

The Janesville Daily Gazette, March 23, 1876.—One of our insurance agents undertook to stand on his head this morning on the sidewalk. His heels flew into the air, but the performance utterly failed. His activity was not equal to the emergency.

The sleighing has passed away among the things which were. The grangers who brought their wood to the city, the sleighs and the morning, were somewhat cornered and were compelled to sell out at a moderate figure.

A very successful and large social party was given last evening at the home of Mr. Samuel Rolston in the fourth ward, for the benefit of the Presbyterian church. The party was passed off gayly and everybody was happy.

A public meeting has been planned which will be held in Lippin's hall tomorrow night, to consider the construction of a narrow-gauge railroad through this city. Everyone is invited to attend and the ones who are opposed to its construction, as an expression of the public sentiment, pro and con, is what is desired.

ABE MARTIN

A disastrous fire swept th' home o' Rev. Wiley Tanager, last night, caused by th' faulty insulation of a childhood collar. Don't a feller feel good after he decides his overcoat 't last another winter?

As William bent over her fair face he whispered, "Darling, if I should ask you in French, if I might kiss you, what would you answer?" Nancy, calling up her scanty knowledge of the French language, exclaimed, "Billet doux."

"What's this I hear about you coming out in favor of woman suffrage," asked the ward heeler.

"Well, I figured it like this," said the district leader. "When we give a chowder party we have to invite the women folk, anyhow, so we might as well get their votes while we're about it."

"Young man," said the boss, "this is the third morning in succession that you have come in late."

"I'm very sorry, sir," said the employee humbly, "but my watch is slow."

"Your watch is slow? Then why don't you have it regulated?"

"I kind of hate to spoil such a good excuse."

"I suppose you devote a part of your income to charity?"

"Of course. Every time I make a million out of ammunition contracts I send a hundred dollars to the war sufferers."

Marjorie (watching expert ice skater)—How can that girl revolve so long on one foot?

Dorothy—Probably she's a daughter of the Revolution.

"I hear, Tommy, you saved a life in the war."

"Well, did, sir."

"How did you do it, Tommy?"

"By not hiniisting, sir."
